

The image shows the front entrance of a building. The central feature is a red door with a glass insert. The door has a silver handle and a lock. Several notices are posted on the glass: a yellow one on the left, a white one in the center, and a green one on the right. Above the door is a transom window. To the left and right of the door are tall, narrow windows. The building's exterior is painted a light yellow or cream color. The entrance is flanked by green-painted concrete pillars. The ground in front of the door is paved with red and grey bricks. A small white ramp is visible on the right side of the entrance.
